West Caldwell, NJ, November 13, 2007 — Ricoh Americas Corporation today announced that Ann Moser, senior vice president, Printing Solutions Division (PSD), won a Stevie Award in the Best Executive – Non Services Business category at the Stevie Awards for Women in Business last night. Moser was recognized for her commitment to providing value-added products, services, and solutions to partners and end-users.

The Stevie Awards were handed out in categories including Best Entrepreneur, Best Executive, Lifetime Achievement, and Women Helping Women at the gala event in Las Vegas on November 12, 2007. More than 800 entries from companies of all sizes and in virtually every industry were submitted for consideration.

“This honor is a testament to the power and influence women can have in today’s business world, and I am proud to be recognized by the Stevie Awards,” said Moser. “It is Ricoh’s mission to strengthen relationships with resellers and customers to improve market share. I am happy to help Ricoh achieve those goals by creating strategic initiatives that make an impact.”

Since 2001, Moser has been responsible for guiding the PSD and implementing Ricoh’s printing solutions strategy. She has focused on growing sales in the IT channel by providing reseller partners and customers with a suite of quality printers, scanners and entry-level MFPs. Moser recently established new programs to increase demand-generation opportunities and is now developing a managed-services initiative to help drive a new revenue stream to resellers. Over the past year, Moser has been recognized by VARBusiness magazine as a “Top 50 Business Executive in the Channel” as well as one of the “50 Most Powerful Women in the Channel,” two years running.
